A large cage of homing pigeons were released at the express office at 13.30 on Wednesday. After hovering over the city for a time, they started off for their home at Edmonton South. Last year, a cage of pigeons reached Strathcona in 35 minutes after being released from the station here.

There passed away at the Wetaskiwin Hospital on the 20th inst. Philip Hoesveldt Wager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Wager, at the age of ten years and eight months. The remains were laid away in the Wetaskiwin cemetery on Friday last. We join in extending the deepest sympathy to the sorrowing relatives.

Ottawa, May 14.—An important order-in-council has been passed to provide for cases where a homesteader, who is a member of the Canadian expeditionary force, loses his life on active service. The minister of the interior is now given the power to give free patent to the estate of an heir.

"He gives twice who gives quickly." This old proverb is equally true in the reverse form, "He gets twice who gets quickly." The farmer who gets twice because he does quickly is usually the man who gets money dairying, dairying of the intelligent up to date sort. He gets his milk promptly and pays the 8 or 10 per cent interest that he would otherwise have to pay. He gets better prices on everything he buys because he has the cash on hand.

any liquor was actually consumed, if the justice or magistrate or justice of the peace hearing the case is or are satisfied that a transaction in the nature of a sale or other disposal, giving, purchasing or receiving actually took place or that any consumption of liquor was about to take place; and proof of consumption or intended consumption of liquor or proof of purchase of liquor for consumption is prohibited, by some person not authorized to consume liquor, or person, shall be evidence that such liquor was sold or given to a person consuming, or being about to consume, or carrying away the same as against the occupant of the said premises.

50. The occupant of any house, shop, room or other place in which any sale, barter or traffic, having, keeping or giving liquor, or any matter or thing in contravention of the provisions of this Act, has taken place, shall be personally liable to the penalty and punishment prescribed by this Act, notwithstanding such sale, barter or traffic, having, keeping or giving be by some other person who cannot be proved to have so acted on, under the provisions of this Act, has taken place, and proof of the fact of such sale, barter or traffic, having, keeping or giving, or of any matter or thing in contravention of the provisions of this Act, shall be evidence in support thereof, and it shall not be necessary to state the quality of liquor so sold, kept for sale, disposed of, had, kept, given or consumed, except in the case of offences where the quantity is essential, and then it shall be sufficient to allege the sale or disposal of more or less than such quantity.

45. In any prosecution for the violation of any of the provisions of this Act, in the event of any variance between the information and the evidence adduced in support thereof, the justice or justices hearing the case may amend such information and may substitute for the offence charged therein in any other offence against the provisions of this Act, but if it appears that the person charged has been materially misled by such variance he shall be granted an adjournment of the hearing if he applies therefor.

46. Any person summoned as a party to, or as a witness in, a proceeding under this Act may, by the summons or required to produce at the time and place appointed for his attendance, all books and papers accounts, drafts and other documents in his possession, custody, or control relating to any matter connected with the said proceeding, and shall be liable to the same penalties for non-production of such books, papers or documents as he would incur by refusal or neglect to attend pursuant to such summons, to be sworn or answer any question touching the case.

47. In any prosecution or proceeding under this Act, in which proof is given of the sale or disposal of liquor to sell liquor, a certificate under the hand of the Chief Inspector or Attorney General shall be prima facie proof of the said offence, and the production of said certificate shall be sufficient prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, and of the authority of the Chief Inspector or Attorney General without any proof.

48. Any house, shop, room or other place in which it is proved that there exists a bar or counter, or beer pumps or kegs, jar or canteens or tumblers or glasses or any other appliances, preparations, or utensils, similar to those usually found in hotels and shops where liquors are accustomed to be sold or trafficked, it shall be deemed to be a place where liquors are kept or had for the purpose of being sold, bartered or trafficked, in contravention of this Act, unless the contrary is proved by the defendant in any prosecution; and the occupant of such house, shop, room or other place shall be taken to be the person who has or is using therein such liquors for sale, traffic or barter therein.

49. In proving the sale or disposal, giving, purchasing or receiving gratuitously or otherwise, or consumption of liquor for the purpose of any proceeding relative to any offence under this Act, it shall not be necessary to prove that the person charged with the offence was actually present at the time and place of each contravention.

42. Several charges of contravention of this Act committed by the same person may be included in one indictment; provided that such information and complaint and the summons or warrant issued thereon contain the time and place of each contravention.

43. The description of any offence under this Act in the words of this Act, or in words of like effect, shall be sufficient in law; and any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany the description of the offence in this Act, may be proved by the defendant, and need not be specified or negatived in the information; but, if it is so specified or negatived, no proof in relation to the matter so specified or negatived shall be required on the part of the informant or complainant.

44. In describing offences respecting the sale or keeping for sale or other use of liquor, or having, keeping, giving, purchasing, receiving or consumption of liquor, or the consumption of liquor in any information, summons, conviction, warrant or process, under this Act, it shall be sufficient to state the sale, or keeping for sale or disposal, having, keeping, giving, purchasing, receiving or consumption of liquor, simply, without stating the name of kind of such liquor, or the price thereof, or the name of any person, to whom it was sold or disposed of, or by whom it was taken or consumed, or from whom it was purchased or received, and it shall not be necessary to state the quality of liquor so sold, kept for sale, disposed of, had, kept, given or consumed, except in the case of offences where the quantity is essential, and then it shall be sufficient to allege the sale or disposal of more or less than such quantity.

(10) No appeal shall lie by a person convicted of an offence under the provisions of this Act unless the party appealing shall within the time limited for giving notice of such appeal, make an affidavit before the justice or one of the justices or police magistrate who tried the case, that he did not by himself or by his agent, servant or employee, nor did any other person procure the offence charged in the information; and shall further negative the commission of the offence by the agent, servant or employee of the accused or any other person with his knowledge or consent; which affidavit shall be transmitted to the court to which the appeal is given.

(11) Any justice making a conviction for any offence under this Act shall not transmit the conviction to the court of which an appeal is given unless and until the affidavit required by this section has been made and deposited with such justice within the time limited by this section; any notice of appeal or proceedings respecting appeal that may be given or taken shall be absolutely null and void and of no effect whatever, and the justice shall proceed in respect of such conviction as if no such notice of appeal has been given or proceeding taken.

(12) Upon notice being given of appeal from a conviction for an offence under this Act, a consequence of which conviction is that the person is disqualified from selling liquor for an offence of the kind specified on the affidavit required by this section, being made and deposited as provided, the Attorney General may apply to the court to which such appeal is made to expedite the hearing of the said appeal and to fix the time and place for the disposal of the said appeal as to it may seem proper.

49. In proving the sale or disposal, giving, purchasing or receiving gratuitously or otherwise, or consumption of liquor for the purpose of any proceeding relative to any offence under this Act, it shall not be necessary to prove that the person charged with the offence was actually present at the time and place of each contravention.

42. Several charges of contravention of this Act committed by the same person may be included in one indictment; provided that such information and complaint and the summons or warrant issued thereon contain the time and place of each contravention.

43. The description of any offence under this Act in the words of this Act, or in words of like effect, shall be sufficient in law; and any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany the description of the offence in this Act, may be proved by the defendant, and need not be specified or negatived in the information; but, if it is so specified or negatived, no proof in relation to the matter so specified or negatived shall be required on the part of the informant or complainant.

44. In describing offences respecting the sale or keeping for sale or other use of liquor, or having, keeping, giving, purchasing, receiving or consumption of liquor, or the consumption of liquor in any information, summons, conviction, warrant or process, under this Act, it shall be sufficient to state the sale, or keeping for sale or disposal, having, keeping, giving, purchasing, receiving or consumption of liquor, simply, without stating the name of kind of such liquor, or the price thereof, or the name of any person, to whom it was sold or disposed of, or by whom it was taken or consumed, or from whom it was purchased or received, and it shall not be necessary to state the quality of liquor so sold, kept for sale, disposed of, had, kept, given or consumed, except in the case of offences where the quantity is essential, and then it shall be sufficient to allege the sale or disposal of more or less than such quantity.

(10) No appeal shall lie by a person convicted of an offence under the provisions of this Act unless the party appealing shall within the time limited for giving notice of such appeal, make an affidavit before the justice or one of the justices or police magistrate who tried the case, that he did not by himself or by his agent, servant or employee, nor did any other person procure the offence charged in the information; and shall further negative the commission of the offence by the agent, servant or employee of the accused or any other person with his knowledge or consent; which affidavit shall be transmitted to the court to which the appeal is given.

(11) Any justice making a conviction for any offence under this Act shall not transmit the conviction to the court of which an appeal is given unless and until the affidavit required by this section has been made and deposited with such justice within the time limited by this section; any notice of appeal or proceedings respecting appeal that may be given or taken shall be absolutely null and void and of no effect whatever, and the justice shall proceed in respect of such conviction as if no such notice of appeal has been given or proceeding taken.

(12) Upon notice being given of appeal from a conviction for an offence under this Act, a consequence of which conviction is that the person is disqualified from selling liquor for an offence of the kind specified on the affidavit required by this section, being made and deposited as provided, the Attorney General may apply to the court to which such appeal is made to expedite the hearing of the said appeal and to fix the time and place for the disposal of the said appeal as to it may seem proper.

49. In proving the sale or disposal, giving, purchasing or receiving gratuitously or otherwise, or consumption of liquor for the purpose of any proceeding relative to any offence under this Act, it shall not be necessary to prove that the person charged with the offence was actually present at the time and place of each contravention.

any to show that any money passed or any liquor was actually consumed, if the justice or magistrate or justice of the peace hearing the case is or are satisfied that a transaction in the nature of a sale or other disposal, giving, purchasing or receiving actually took place or that any consumption of liquor was about to take place; and proof of consumption or intended consumption of liquor or proof of purchase of liquor for consumption is prohibited, by some person not authorized to consume liquor, or person, shall be evidence that such liquor was sold or given to a person consuming, or being about to consume, or carrying away the same as against the occupant of the said premises.

50. The occupant of any house, shop, room or other place in which any sale, barter or traffic, having, keeping or giving liquor, or any matter or thing in contravention of the provisions of this Act, has taken place, shall be personally liable to the penalty and punishment prescribed by this Act, notwithstanding such sale, barter or traffic, having, keeping or giving be by some other person who cannot be proved to have so acted on, under the provisions of this Act, has taken place, and proof of the fact of such sale, barter or traffic, having, keeping or giving, or of any matter or thing in contravention of the provisions of this Act, shall be evidence in support thereof, and it shall not be necessary to state the quality of liquor so sold, kept for sale, disposed of, had, kept, given or consumed, except in the case of offences where the quantity is essential, and then it shall be sufficient to allege the sale or disposal of more or less than such quantity.

45. In any prosecution for the violation of any of the provisions of this Act, in the event of any variance between the information and the evidence adduced in support thereof, the justice or justices hearing the case may amend such information and may substitute for the offence charged therein in any other offence against the provisions of this Act, but if it appears that the person charged has been materially misled by such variance he shall be granted an adjournment of the hearing if he applies therefor.

46. Any person summoned as a party to, or as a witness in, a proceeding under this Act may, by the summons or required to produce at the time and place appointed for his attendance, all books and papers accounts, drafts and other documents in his possession, custody, or control relating to any matter connected with the said proceeding, and shall be liable to the same penalties for non-production of such books, papers or documents as he would incur by refusal or neglect to attend pursuant to such summons, to be sworn or answer any question touching the case.

47. In any prosecution or proceeding under this Act, in which proof is given of the sale or disposal of liquor to sell liquor, a certificate under the hand of the Chief Inspector or Attorney General shall be prima facie proof of the said offence, and the production of said certificate shall be sufficient prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, and of the authority of the Chief Inspector or Attorney General without any proof.

48. Any house, shop, room or other place in which it is proved that there exists a bar or counter, or beer pumps or kegs, jar or canteens or tumblers or glasses or any other appliances, preparations, or utensils, similar to those usually found in hotels and shops where liquors are accustomed to be sold or trafficked, it shall be deemed to be a place where liquors are kept or had for the purpose of being sold, bartered or trafficked, in contravention of this Act, unless the contrary is proved by the defendant in any prosecution; and the occupant of such house, shop, room or other place shall be taken to be the person who has or is using therein such liquors for sale, traffic or barter therein.

49. In proving the sale or disposal, giving, purchasing or receiving gratuitously or otherwise, or consumption of liquor for the purpose of any proceeding relative to any offence under this Act, it shall not be necessary to prove that the person charged with the offence was actually present at the time and place of each contravention.

42. Several charges of contravention of this Act committed by the same person may be included in one indictment; provided that such information and complaint and the summons or warrant issued thereon contain the time and place of each contravention.

43. The description of any offence under this Act in the words of this Act, or in words of like effect, shall be sufficient in law; and any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany the description of the offence in this Act, may be proved by the defendant, and need not be specified or negatived in the information; but, if it is so specified or negatived, no proof in relation to the matter so specified or negatived shall be required on the part of the informant or complainant.

44. In describing offences respecting the sale or keeping for sale or other use of liquor, or having, keeping, giving, purchasing, receiving or consumption of liquor, or the consumption of liquor in any information, summons, conviction, warrant or process, under this Act, it shall be sufficient to state the sale, or keeping for sale or disposal, having, keeping, giving, purchasing, receiving or consumption of liquor, simply, without stating the name of kind of such liquor, or the price thereof, or the name of any person, to whom it was sold or disposed of, or by whom it was taken or consumed, or from whom it was purchased or received, and it shall not be necessary to state the quality of liquor so sold, kept for sale, disposed of, had, kept, given or consumed, except in the case of offences where the quantity is essential, and then it shall be sufficient to allege the sale or disposal of more or less than such quantity.

(10) No appeal shall lie by a person convicted of an offence under the provisions of this Act unless the party appealing shall within the time limited for giving notice of such appeal, make an affidavit before the justice or one of the justices or police magistrate who tried the case, that he did not by himself or by his agent, servant or employee, nor did any other person procure the offence charged in the information; and shall further negative the commission of the offence by the agent, servant or employee of the accused or any other person with his knowledge or consent; which affidavit shall be transmitted to the court to which the appeal is given.

(11) Any justice making a conviction for any offence under this Act shall not transmit the conviction to the court of which an appeal is given unless and until the affidavit required by this section has been made and deposited with such justice within the time limited by this section; any notice of appeal or proceedings respecting appeal that may be given or taken shall be absolutely null and void and of no effect whatever, and the justice shall proceed in respect of such conviction as if no such notice of appeal has been given or proceeding taken.

(12) Upon notice being given of appeal from a conviction for an offence under this Act, a consequence of which conviction is that the person is disqualified from selling liquor for an offence of the kind specified on the affidavit required by this section, being made and deposited as provided, the Attorney General may apply to the court to which such appeal is made to expedite the hearing of the said appeal and to fix the time and place for the disposal of the said appeal as to it may seem proper.

49. In proving the sale or disposal, giving, purchasing or receiving gratuitously or otherwise, or consumption of liquor for the purpose of any proceeding relative to any offence under this Act, it shall not be necessary to prove that the person charged with the offence was actually present at the time and place of each contravention.

42. Several charges of contravention of this Act committed by the same person may be included in one indictment; provided that such information and complaint and the summons or warrant issued thereon contain the time and place of each contravention.

43. The description of any offence under this Act in the words of this Act, or in words of like effect, shall be sufficient in law; and any exception, exemption, proviso, excuse or qualification, whether it does or does not accompany the description of the offence in this Act, may be proved by the defendant, and need not be specified or negatived in the information; but, if it is so specified or negatived, no proof in relation to the matter so specified or negatived shall be required on the part of the informant or complainant.

MUCH ADLER-KA USED

IN WETASKIWIN.

It is reported by T. F. Ball, that much Adler-ka is sold in Wetaskiwin. People have found out that ONE SPOONFUL of this simple beetroot bark and glycerine mixture relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. It is so powerful that it is used successfully in appendicitis. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gases rumble and pass out. It is perfectly safe to use and cannot gripe.

The Experienced Driver

Is the one who knows and values good harness. The best drivers in this city know and value our harness because they have tested it in the light of practical experience and long use and that they find it wears and stands up under the hardest conditions. Besides that, it has the smart and natty look you desire.

I have the above amounts (and others) available for loans on improved farms at current rates of interest. First come, first served.

How Arthur Rosenoll Was Wounded

A few days ago Mr. A. S. Rosenoll received a letter from Mr. B. B. H. Conybeare, giving an account of the wounding of his son Arthur. A portion of the letter follows:

"Arthur was wounded at Ypres on April 22, when the Canadians distinguished themselves, and according to all accounts he was right in the thick of it.

"I will try and give you a description of the fight from what I can remember of his story.

"The wound as I said in the cable is not very serious, but it is one of those things which cannot be judged at present. It is on the right arm and the base of the muscle at the back of the arm just below the elbow seems to have been blown away, but no bones broken, and the condition of the wound seems to point to the fact that either a dumdum or a reversed bullet has been the cause of making the hole that exists, which is about 6 inches long and 3 inches wide and extends right down to the bone, and as Arthur says that no shrapnel burst when he was hit it must have been either of the above stated bullets, for it is too clean a gash to have been a ricochet.

"According to Arthur's story, the 10th Battalion, with the 15th Battalion as a reserve, got out of their trenches and advanced to within 20 yards of the German lines, where they lay for a few minutes in extended order, then came the command for a charge, and up they got, with the 15th Battalion close behind and charged. This all happened in the dusk.

"As they came through the charge without a scratch although machine guns were turned on them and men were falling all around him. He later carried a wounded man back to the trench, and went out again himself, arrived in the wood which had previously been cleared, when a bullet went through his cap and for a moment Arthur said he thought he had been shot in the head, and began to feel for the hole. It turned out later that his assailants were our own men; who had mistaken him for a German sniper. He then joined them, four in all, and the five of them without an officer or an N.C.O. kept on going, Arthur taking the temporary command. The five of them ran into a party of about 30 Germans and immediately opened fire, and about five minutes after Arthur got hit, and another man—Heron by name, while loosening the sling of Arthur's rifle to put it over his back—got a bullet through his shoulder, leaving only three of them to continue the fight, so they made a strategic retirement back to the trenches, where Arthur was getting one of the men to fix his arm up, when somehow the Germans got around to the rear, necessitating our men to climb out of the trench and shoot over the parapet, when Arthur suddenly remembered he had left his tunic beside the trench with his pocket book and everything valuable he owned, so climbing back into the trench, he found his tunic, and started back for the field hospital, later to be sent to London.

KNOCKING BOOZIE

"I'll gladly hit the water cooler," says George, Great Britain's mighty ruler, "and cut the bugles out, as an example to the lobbies who blow the shillings of their daddies for porter, beer or stout. By foreign foe we are endangered, and Boozie, like some fierce dog unmanaged, is raising hob at home; it tolls not, and keeps them hot with useless tolling, as they blow off the foam. We're running short of ammunition because our workmen's condition recalls the old D.T., the provocation now seems ample, and so I'll set a good example—no long cold drinks for me." This with all the warring nations; they're finding out that liquid rations are fruitful of despair, far more than all the sword that slaughter, the submarine down under water, the atrocity in the air. In Russia now no vodka's flowing; we see the thirsty mouths going to the holiest wall; and France, the volatile and merry, prohibited the old "green fix," that sent her sons to hell. The German soldiers heard the Kaiser informing them it would be wiser to give the pump a show. Thus all the rulers are deciding that barleycorn the long shilling, means trouble, strife and woe—Walt Mason

The Olds district was visited by a severe hail storm a week ago Monday and the farmers in the district are overjoyed to think that the hail came when it did and not when the grain is up. There were several runways caused by the hail, but otherwise, no serious damage was done.

On Wednesday of last week Constable Geo. Greenwald who is of German descent, for creating a disturbance. While being taken to the lock-up a loaded revolver was found in his possession. The accused appeared before Inspector Townsend, and was sentenced to three months at Fort Saskatchewan. A further charge may be laid against Greenwald for sedition. Stetler inquired.

GERMANY'S HOPE GONE.

A director of the Dresden Bank of Berlin is quoted by one of the Vienna papers as saying, "It is naturally impossible to know when the war will end. I hope it will be terminated before this year is over, perhaps even before Autumn. I do not believe that Germany will get a war indemnity, but we might receive from our antagonists securities that we could use in paying off a part of our war expenditure."

It is aptly remarked by a correspondent of one of the New York papers that if it has been recognized that the constructive spirit of the war on the German side has disappeared. Prussian militarism has ever been a plundering and money-making institution. As a result of the wars among civilized nations, during the last one hundred and twenty years indomitable to the total amount of $1,447,000,000, have been collected, and of this Prussia has got $1,045,000,000, or 72 per cent. With all prospects of securing plunder as the result of this war, the reason d'être of the war, from Germany's point of view, has disappeared. Hence Germany's principal aim has already been defeated, and she fights now with only destruction and revenge as her motives.

Every dollar you send out of the town flies away with a value that rightfully belongs to your community. Spend it at home, with your home merchant, where its value stays with you and helps to build up your interests. When you come to think of it, there are only two kinds of dollars—the "Dollar with Wings" and the "Development Dollar." The "Dollar with Wings" goes to build up the far distant city, the big metropolis. The "Development Dollar" goes to build up the home town. It helps build up a nation of real men and women. Then, let us make the dollars we spend. "Development Dollars," home town builders, building for us and our neighbors, a better future, making our community more prosperous, more happy, more contented.

The Habit of Reading Advertisements

NEWSPAPERS would be much less enjoyable, instructive and valuable than they are if they contained no advertisements. Many persons read the advertisements quite as thoroughly as they read the news matter. This is just as it should be.

The more advertising, the more buying. The more buying, the greater the consumption of the goods or service advertised. More business would be done by the merchants of Wetaskiwin if they advertised more, and if more of them advertised. Much business goes to the big city mail-order houses because they advertise. These houses would cease to draw business from this community if they ceased to advertise.

To the Merchants of Wetaskiwin:

Advertise more, and more of you advertise, and the big city mail-order houses will get less business and less business from this community, and you will get more.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER

Ottawa, May 22.—(Since) the June election went glimmering the Hon. Bob Rogers' stock has gone down fifty per cent. What's the use of a miracle? Man if he can't put something over? So far as Bob's adventures can discover Bob's black magic has not had a particle of influence on public opinion. If there was a wicked partner in sight who could deliver the goods Bob wouldn't stand long. He remains on the job because nobody else is available.

As a matter of fact the Honorable Bob has them going and coming. If they keep him they take the blame. If they let him go they take the consequences. If he leaves them he leaves them on their backs for when all is said and done the Minister of Public Works is the greatest purveyor of human nature in the Cabinet and has endeared himself to the rank and file by his hale fellowship with the back benches. As for the Honorable Bob himself he doesn't give a hoot one way or the other. He is not like a man who hasn't order horizons there. Ottawa, for instance the High Commissioner for London is a good job. W. T. R. Preston's book has shown what can be done with it.

Three things have hampered the Honorable Bob's career at Ottawa. The first is his overgrown reputation. He has been credited with supernatural powers, largely owing to the efforts of the Opposition who have gifted him, in their remarks with horns, a hoof and a tail. The plain truth is that Bob is no modern Machiavelli. He has no secret tricks in his bag. His are the worn worn petty arts of the ward politician projected on the larger arena of the Dominion of Canada. Magisterial phrases, to give him his due, is a hard thinker. He is subtle as the serpent and has initiative. The Honorable Bob is only a straw devil. He knows his book because he has learnt it by heart but he is only a straw devil. He did in Manitoba and has not thought out any new stunts. It's easy enough to guess what he'll be up to next. Naturally he has disappointed his friends who expected a forty-two centimetre performance from a twenty-two centimetre.

The next obstacle to the Honorable Bob's success has been the size of Canada, which is four thousand miles wide and goodness knows how many miles deep. At all events it is thick enough almost anywhere to not afford a good handhold. It has no neck where you can choke it off and it's mighty hard to find its tail. The consequence is that it is a hard country for one man to run. With oceans on both sides there's plenty of room to swing it. But somehow or other it is a no footing to swing it from. Indian club politicians have come from all over Canada at one time or other prepared to use their belated energy as a sort of calisthenic exercise but none of them ever did much with it. They might be good local winners in New Brunswick or Quebec or Manitoba or wherever it was but the Dominion of Canada is another story. It has defied their best efforts. It has simply refused to be swung because that was not the way it was in the habit of being treated. What Canada asks of a statesman is not swinging but lifting. Dead weight is what has to be overcome. Atlas, a very wary Atlas, has at that, in the model Phantasmagoria White follows. The Honorable Bob never had any trouble swinging Manitoba, which is a small province, even with the Hudson Bay additions but Canada is a back-breaker.

The third lion in the Honorable Bob's path is the government. It is willing enough to have an Evil One, a good "dicer" with a good devotion, in the Cabinet, but it does not act on its promptings. His promptings may be sagacious enough but his colleague lack spirit to carry them out. The Honorable Bob can supply them with hints but the spirit has not got to be their own. For example Bob wanted an election last fall but didn't get it. He wanted one this June but they fumbled again. Come now, an even more powerful persuader than Bob Rogers. The idea of a general election this year has not been abandoned, the date has merely been shifted. Meanwhile the best the government can do is to keep alluding to it which is poor comfort for a man as impatient as Bob Rogers.

Within the last two weeks the Honorable Bob has become the leading member of the I-told-you-so club. Events in Manitoba bear him out. The name of the Bob's government is in jeopardy—its glory and power has departed. Worse than that the election machinery has passed out of its hands. The Honorable Bob heard the S.O.S. calls from Winnipeg and was in favor of starting to the rescue by way of a Dominion election but here's labor would be lost now that strong swimmers like Sir Rodmond Roblin and Dr. Montague have "one down." There's really nobody else who would be worth saving for the inquest on the new Parliament buildings.

Wild signals, some wireless, others not, continue to come from British Columbia, where Sir Richard McBride is sinking by the head. The tide has turned, and Joe Martin, among others, is on his back. Can he hang on a little longer? Mebbe. Richard will never be himself again. He doesn't know where he's at. Neither does British Columbia. It's a moot question at this moment whether the British Columbia legislature is dissolved or not. Bob Rogers is the only man that knows and he and Sir Rodmond are not speaking now. Meanwhile the Honorable Bob has to look on and see another friend drawn under. It's his fate to have the government to which he belongs potter while other governments in which he is indirectly interested totter.

The Honorable Bob is having hard luck all round. Even his excuse for a general election are turned down. It was Bob's idea to sound the tocsin against the Senate as unjust and tyrannical because it insisted on the soldiers at the front getting as honest an election as the folks at home. When the people of Canada did not rise to this, another excuse was put forward which is plainly not Bob's. To give Bob his due he is no whiner. He hears the roar and the burden of the day and doesn't complain just as he takes the hard knocks and comes up smiling. He would not be guilty of saying that the government ought to go to the country because the load is too great for any sixteen cabinet ministers to carry.

It wasn't so long ago that Premier Borden was boasting of that very load in the House of Commons and how nobly the government of the day was sustaining trials and tribulations—the most onerous in Canadian history. The sentiment was loudly applauded by his followers who were naturally proud of the performance. It is quite true that the government has from time to time cut parts of the load to Royal Commissions and that the bill for extra help of this kind now run into hundreds of thousands of dollars per annum but the House was willing to forget that in view of the special war burdens to which the government was alluding. In almost the same breath Sir Robert announced that he was transferring a fair share of the damage to the timber and grocers who would act as a purchasing commission and relieve tax government of spending one hundred million dollars among the ten to fifteen per cent patriots but nobody thought he wanted to get rid of that work was left. It seems, however, that he does, at least in the Pickwickian sense, and that a general election in which the people would vote the voting and the government would run for office would do the proper division of labor.

Labor and the Liquor Act

The working man has a very real interest in the proposed Liquor Act. As a matter of fact, it is a very largely framed up for him. Under its operation he would no longer be able to buy a glass of liquor in a licensed hotel. He would thus have to go without or incur the expenses of bringing his supplies in by the bottle from an adjoining province. This would be no hardship in the case of a well-to-do person but it would be distinctly unfair to penalize the working man as would be done under the Liquor Act. That measure tells the working classes they cannot be trusted to be have themselves. Because some 18 people out of every 100 in Alberta indulge immoderately in alcoholic liquors, the other 82 who do not are to be treated in exactly the same manner as the latter. Why? The reformers would concentrate their efforts upon the regeneration of the immoderate drinker, instead of penalizing the whole community, and especially the working man? Has the latter not a right to preserve his personal liberty of action in this the twentieth century?

The reformers was pathetically eloquent over what they are pleased to call "the economic waste" of the liquor traffic. This is a fallacy. The money spent for liquor circulates in the community in the same manner as money spent in the purchase of other commodities. Adam Smith, the father of the science of Political Economy, disposed of this argument long ago, and why it should be used today is only to be explained by the fact that it is a piece of plausible sophistry which may appeal to some people.

The "economic waste" argument can be made to react upon the reformers themselves. Do they realize what they preach? Is every one of their purchases examined in the light of a necessity and thus procured economically desirable? For example, do they go back to first principles in the matter of what they eat, drink and wear? If so, these things whatever is unnecessary to secure the preservation of life is economically indefensible, but the practice of such a doctrine would bring about an industrial revolution. Luxuries are sought by people, as these can be afforded, and the fact of their being economically sound or otherwise, does not enter into the consideration of the purchaser. He pays his money for the articles that are more ornamental than useful, and that money goes into circulation for the benefit of the community. The same thing applies to money spent upon alcoholic liquors, but the Liquor Act would stop the province from obtaining the benefit accruing from the spending of this money.

Is there any reason to believe that all the money which is now spent upon alcoholic liquors in Alberta would be devoted to the purchase of purely economically sound commodities under the operation of the Liquor Act? This is extremely unlikely. As a matter of fact the Liquor Act itself makes it still permissible to spend money upon alcoholic liquors, so long as a man keeps in his own house and does not obtain them in Alberta. If money expended upon alcoholic liquors is economically indefensible, why do the promoters of the Liquor Act allow such an unreasoned (from their standpoint) principle to be incorporated in the Act? This, however, is only one of the many inconsistencies that are to be found in the measure.

Liquor is blamed by the reformers for many things. Needless to state it is not liquor that abuse which produces trouble. To remedy the effects of abuse the reformers would prevent the use of liquor. The curious thing, however, is that where this form of remedy has been tried such evils as crime, poverty, insanity and drunkenness still remain. For examples of the truth of this statement one has only to look at the records of the prohibition states of the Union as well as the territory under prohibition in Eastern Canada. As a matter of fact, prohibition is responsible for the creation of numerous evils, such as hypocrisy, evasion of law and contempt for law, but the most serious charge that case made against prohibition is that it transforms into offenders men who otherwise are perfectly respectable citizens. The drinking of liquor in itself is not an illegitimate act, and there is no reason why one particular section of the community should be permitted to make drinking an unlawful act. There is also no reason why the practice in Alberta should be different from that of the other eastern provinces.

As far as poverty is concerned, reformers ignore the fact that the excessive use of liquor is less the cause than the result of poverty. That is the view held by thoughtful students of social and economic conditions, and the remedy is rather to better these conditions than to attempt to cure them by a purely surface remedy of the type of prohibition. The latter does not increase the sense of respect in any man. On the contrary, it detracts from it. Prohibition serves in effect that mankind cannot be trusted, and its object therefore is to compel a semblance of virtue which is illusory in every way.

Workers have a real interest in opposing this measure. It would interfere with their liberty of action to a very material extent. It takes away, but gives nothing in exchange, and it is above all else an invasion of the rights and liberties of respectable citizens. The measure itself would be found impracticable in operation and it would further impose a financial burden upon the community. At a time when economy is such an absolute necessity it is a very serious matter.

A careful study of the Liquor Act will reveal its many weaknesses and inconsistencies. The working man after reading the Act and judging for himself how its operation would affect him will see that on July 21, he registers his vote against same and so help to increase the onward march of progressive Alberta.

The Liquor Act

Is the Name of the Proposed Prohibition Bill upon Which We Will Vote on July 21

1. What is the purpose of the Act? To prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within the province of Alberta for beverage purposes.
2. What the Act will do if passed? (a) It will abolish all licensed bars, rooms, clubs and wholesale stores, and thus do away with the treating system.

(b) It will provide for the sale of liquor for medicinal, mechanical, scientific and sacramental purposes.

through "Vendors" who shall be government appointees.

(c) It will do away with the element of private gain and greed by giving the vendors a fixed salary with absolutely no commissions.

(d) It will allow such persons as are properly registered in their particular professions, as druggists, physicians, etc., to obtain alcohol for strictly medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes.

(It will allow a householder to keep one quart of spirits and two gallons of malt liquor in his own home for his private use, provided it is not purchased within the province. It will prohibit keeping any liquor in hotels, clubs, offices, places of business, apartments, boarding houses, etc.)

(f) It will impose a heavy fine and imprisonment for infractions of the Act.

3. What the Act will not do—

(a) It will not stop the manufacture of liquor in the province, as this right is granted by Dominion statute.

(b) It will not stop the importation of liquor from outside the province, as this right is granted by Dominion statute. It will prevent the sale of such within the province.

4. By the terms of the direct legislation Act, under which this referendum is being taken, only a majority is necessary to make it law in the province. Any male British subject, either by birth or naturalization, who is over 21 years of age, who has resided for a period of 12 months in the province, and for three months in the electoral constituency, shall be entitled to a vote.

5. It carried, the Liquor Act will go into effect on July 1, 1916.

Remember, a vote for "The Liquor Act" is a vote for Prohibition.
